Welcome to Milwaukee and the 2022 Environments for Aging Conference + Expo!

It feels like only yesterday we were in Chattanooga for the 2021 EFA Conference—and that’s because it practically was yesterday: The pandemic pushed our scheduled 2021 show from April to late August, truncating the time between shows by several months. But that doesn’t mean we don’t have plenty to talk about and lots to share with you in the exhibit space here in Wisconsin.

Quite the contrary: COVID-19 has dragged on longer than any of us would have hoped for, and in that time designers, community owners and operators, manufacturers, and building professionals have learned a ton about adapting senior living environments for the new “pandemic age.” They’re gathered here this week to share what they’ve learned on that front, as well as other best practices for comfortable and safe homes that allow seniors of all abilities to thrive.

This year, we’re bringing you 40+ educational sessions in six tracks, with two session types: educational (traditional setting, one hour) and deep dive (in-depth look at a singular topic, two hours and 15 minutes). Attendees can earn up to 22 continuing education hours for AIA and IDCEC, as well as 14 EDAC hours.

We kick it off on Sunday morning with our opening keynote, presented by Ayse Birsal, who will explore the work she’s done to gather insight and lessons from older adults to understand their wants and needs as they age. Her talk will help inform the industry on the types of solutions required in the built environment to support that vision. Also on Sunday, join us for the Environments for Aging Magazine Awards Luncheon—free and open to all attendees—where we’ll celebrate the winners of EFA’s award programs.

More inspiration can be found on the expo floor, where more than 80 exhibitors will present their latest and greatest products and services to consider for your next senior living design projects. Get your first look at these offerings Sunday from 3:30-5:30 p.m. during our welcome reception, sponsored by Kwalu. Come have a drink with us and chat with your colleagues and friends about the day’s sessions as you connect with leading manufacturers and service providers.

On Monday morning, you’ll hear from Margaret Calkins, PhD, MArch, who has been named The Center for Health Design’s Changemaker in the senior living space. After another full day of sessions and expo floor happenings, you won’t want to miss our official show party at 6:00 p.m., located at the Milwaukee Public Museum, less than a 10-minute walk from the convention center.

With all of this, EFA Conference gives you the unique opportunity to step away from your desk for a few days; reload your brains and recharge your batteries; and then get back to work helping seniors live happier, healthier, and more fulfilled lives. This is a mission we’re truly proud of. We look forward to meeting you this week.

Sincerely,

Kevin Gaffney

WELCOME

Debra Levin, Hon. FASID, EDAC

Welcome to Environments for Aging Conference + Expo 2022! It's been seven months since we were together in Chattanooga, and in that time our industry has continued to face challenges that have pushed us to explore new solutions, question old ones, and evolve as an industry. The global pandemic may have been the impetus for fast-tracking innovative design solutions, but continuous improvement of environments for people as they age has always been our community's goal. Providing a time and place for us to gather, dream, explore, and converse was why we started the EFA Conference 16 years ago.

Though COVID-19 is still top of mind these days, the program selection committee members worked hard to create a diverse slate of presentations this year, one that focuses on lessons learned over the last two years but also on how the built environment can enrich the lives of the people who live and work in them.

Over the next few days, you'll have the opportunity to dive deep into a vast offering of topics, learn about a variety of new senior housing models that are popping up across the U.S., and, of course, catch up with old friends and plant the seeds for some new ones.

Monday morning, we're excited to honor the groundbreaking work of Margaret Calkins with a Changemaker Award, and Gerald Weisman and Uriel Cohen with a Lifetime Achievement Award for their creation of the Institute on Aging & Environment at the University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee. If you have been inspired by the work of someone in our field, consider nominating them for a future Changemaker Award.

And we've carved out a good number of hours to spend dedicated time in the expo hall where you'll not only have the opportunity to find solutions to your current design challenges but also the inspiration for future innovation.

I encourage you to visit The Center for Health Design's website once you return home. We have available a wide variety of free tools and resources that you might find helpful in your daily practice, including interactive design diagrams featuring the most current research, webinars, and a universal design strategies checklist.

We know you have multiple obligations competing for your time and appreciate that you chose EFA Conference + Expo as a place to network, learn, and share. We hope these four days prove to be more than worth the investment and that we'll see you back again next year.

Stay well,

Cavalier Johnson, Mayor

On behalf of the City of Milwaukee, I would like to extend a warm welcome to all attendees and exhibitors of the 2022 EFA Conference + Expo.

Milwaukee's exciting attractions and lively downtown area combined with its renowned warmth and hospitality assure all participants of a memorable visit. Be sure to take in the beauty of Milwaukee's lakefront and our award-winning River Walk. You will want to check out the Deer District and the Fiserv Forum, home to the NBA Champions Milwaukee Bucks. Along Lake Michigan the magnificent kinetic "wings" of the Milwaukee Art Museum welcome all to experience its world-class collections.

You will find lively entertainment, acclaimed brewery tours, and a tempting array of dining options throughout the City. Don't miss out on a visit to the one-of-a-kind Milwaukee Public Market in the Historic Third Ward, featuring a variety of food and beverage options as well as other local products under one roof. The unique neighborhoods and historic avenues of Old World Third Street, Bronzeville, Walker's Point, Sherman Phoenix, Brady Street and Martin Luther King Jr. Drive all invite you to experience the City's rich cultural tradition and diversity.

I hope you have the opportunity to explore Milwaukee and see all our great City has to offer. Best wishes on a successful conference!

Sincerely,

CONTINUING EDUCATION

22 hours CEU (AIA/IDCEC), 14 hours CEU (EDAC)

The Environments for Aging Conference plans its educational content to comply with the accreditation requirements accepted by most major credentialing organizations. Because continuing education requirements differ among state and national agencies, attendees should contact their credentialing agencies for specific acceptance requirements. Attendees receive CE credits for participating in the following educational opportunities: pre-conference workshops, keynotes, and educational breakout sessions.

To receive continuing education credits, the following criteria must be met:

- Conference registration fees must be paid in full. Attendees must attend session in full (i.e. no leaving before the session is over).
- Attendee's badge must be scanned by the room monitor at the start of every session. It is the attendee's responsibility to ensure their badge is scanned.

Architects

To receive CE credit, you will need to have the room monitor scan your conference badge at the start of the session. Conference staff will submit your attendance to AIA electronically as long as you provided your AIA member number at registration. 22 credit hours are available. It is recommended that you keep a copy of the AIA verification form for your records to be able to track which session you attended. AIA CE credits will be recorded in the AIA transcript system within 6-8 weeks of attending the conference.

CE credits will be issued by the American Institute of Architects Provider Quality Reporting Statement (PQRS). The Center for Health Design is a registered provider with The American Institute of Architects Continuing Education Systems. Certificates of Completion for non-AIA members are available upon request. Community Tours (T01 and T02) are included for Architects. For more information, please email Natalie Gonzalez, ngonzalez@healthdesign.org

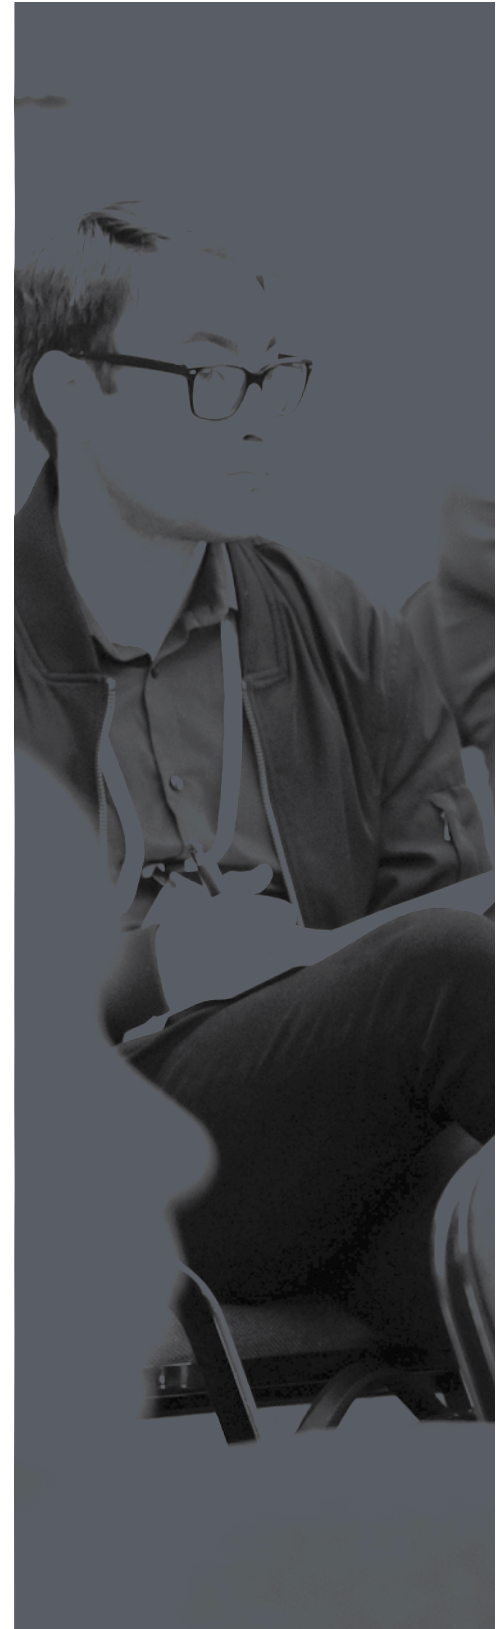

EDAC – Evidence-Based Design Accreditation and Certification

Interior Designers

At the end of each presentation there will be a QR class code specific to each presentation that you will scan and upload into the IDCEC mobile attendance app to record your attendance. It is recommended that you also have your IDCEC Verification Form STAMPED by the room monitor at the conclusion of each presentation you attend. You will keep this form for your records as you will self-submit each session you attend. This is the only proof of attendance that will be accepted for completion of your CEU credit. 22 credit hours are available for all IDCEC organizations: ASID/IDC/IIDA. You need to self-report your credits to the IDCEC system at the conclusion of the conference. If you have questions about reporting your credits, contact the interior design association that is responsible for monitoring mandatory continuing education to fulfill membership requirements.

PRE-CONFERENCE WORKSHOPS

Saturday, April 2

8:00 AM – 3:00 PM

W01 – Coaching Workshop: Putting Evidence-Based Design into Practice for Senior Living

Location: 102 A/B

Donna Deckard BSN, MPA, EDAC, Director of Strategic Projects, The Center for Health Design

Have you wondered what evidence-based design (EBD) is and would like to incorporate this process into your practice or on your next project? If so, this unique, interactive workshop will provide you with an introduction to the steps of the EBD process and offers practical guidance to get you started using this process to help shape your design thinking. As the industry rethinks space planning and the design of senior living environments to address issues identified during the pandemic, learn how the EBD process can be applied to develop strategies and interventions to improve outcomes for residents and staff.

This workshop is a blend of educational content and collaborative discussions that will prepare you to be a better client or partner by giving you information and tools to address some of the challenges facing the industry. Once you register for this workshop, The Center for Health Design will ask you to complete a questionnaire prior to attending the session. This information will be used to match you with a industry expert who will provide individualized coaching tailored to your specific questions and issues in dedicated coaching sessions throughout the day. Light snacks and boxed lunch will be provided. In addition, each attendee receives a bundle of EBD books and resources from The Center for Health Design.

W02 – Dementia Care Workshop: Designing Dementia Capable Environments

Location: 102 C

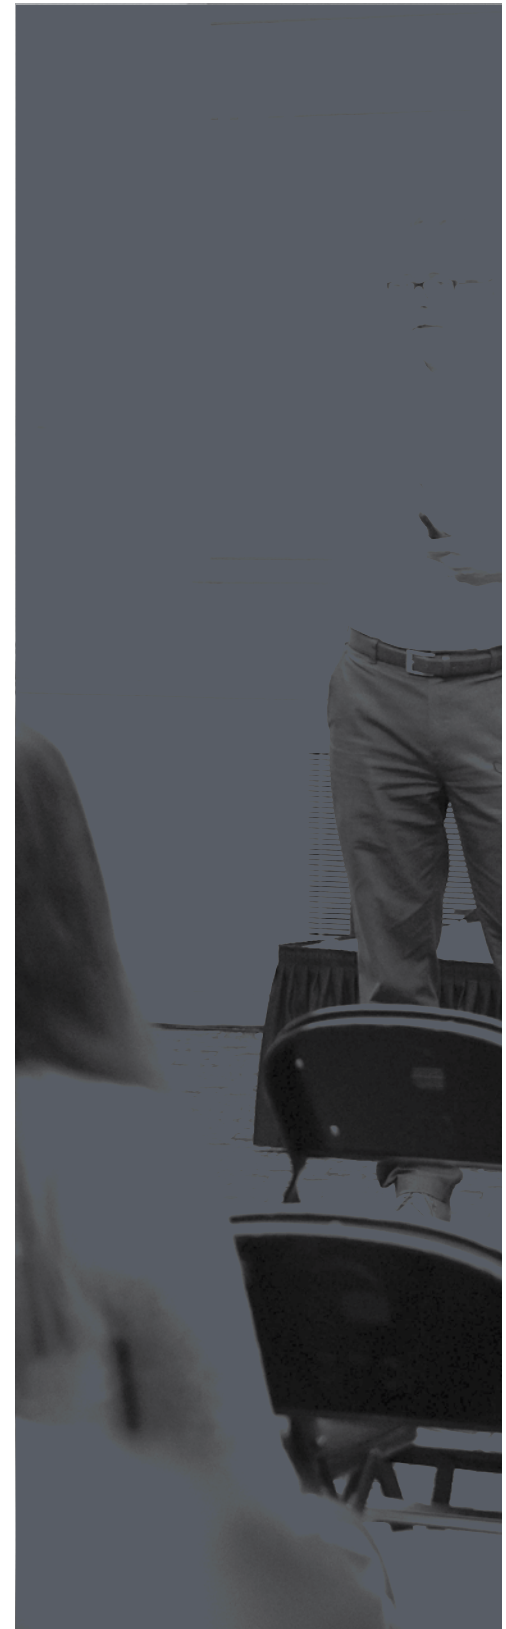

Sharon R. Host, OTR/L, Senior Consultant & GPI, Dementia Care Specialists

The Designing Dementia Capable Environments course offers a two-fold look at memory care design. The first part of the course will introduce you to the stages of dementia and common aging changes for a better understanding of the population for which you are designing. This enables you to create environmental supports that maximize the person's remaining abilities.

The second part of the course is applying what you learned in a design lab. You'll be given an elder profile to design for, using all the principles learned earlier in the day. These principles align with the SAGE Principles Related to Gerontological Environments.

COMMUNITY TOURS

Saturday, April 2

1:00 PM- 5:00 PM

T01 – St. Rita Square

St. Rita Square, an upper middle income, urban senior living apartment community on Milwaukee's Lower East Side, continues the Capri Communities' mission of "enriching the lives of residents through service and commitment to family and community."

Through a longstanding relationship with the Catholic Diocese, Capri purchased the aging St. Rita Church campus for $1. In return, Capri agreed to build a new church along with a senior living community, and then sell the church back to the Diocese for the same price.

With the demolition of the existing church, school, convent, and two residential buildings, the site provided the space needed for 118 units of independent living, memory care, and assisted living. The project preserves history and paves the way for a new chapter and promising future for the community and parish.

T02 – Saint John's On The Lake

Nestled on the bluffs of Lake Michigan, Saint John's On The Lake is a continuing care retirement community that celebrates every chapter of life and supports individual wellness. Its person-centered philosophy and wellness program are designed to meet the needs of the whole person: emotional, intellectual, occupational, physical, social, and spiritual dimensions.

Three towers house 295 apartments, with one- and two-bedroom floor plans available. Health and supportive services are offered in three care neighborhoods dedicated to assisted living, memory care, and skilled nursing. Private rooms and spacious bathrooms are designed to promote independence. Each neighborhood enjoys a full-service kitchen, hearth room, lakeside lounge, and terrace.

A 60,000-square-foot Town Center offers a wide variety of community space. Designed to surprise and delight, unique amenities include a chef's table, a floral design shop, a labyrinth, a museum gallery, and table tennis.

T03 – Direct Supply's Innovation & Technology Center (ITC)

Located on the campus of Milwaukee School of Engineering, Direct Supply's Innovation & Technology Center is dedicated to improving existing technologies and developing forward-thinking innovations related to senior health. The 55,000-square-foot building, recently renovated, was purposefully built and intentionally designed to serve as a forward-thinking space where the company is able to independently test, validate, and implement new ideas for the senior living industry.

She's now turned her experience and perspective toward designing a better life for people as they age. In this keynote talk, Birsel will explore the work she's done to gather insight and lessons from older adults to understand their wants and needs as they age. Through a year-long, co-design process, she and her team conducted a series of national sessions with individuals ages 65+ that allowed participants to share their desires as well as empowered them to reimagine possibilities and opportunities for fulfillment at this time in their lives. The results have inspired Birsel's latest book, "Design the LONG Life You Love," and will offer valuable takeaways for the senior living design industry on how to support residents in achieving this vision. Come hear her story and understand the ways this industry can support seniors in living lives they will love.

Creating memory care that is innovative and welcoming with ample resident support, designers, owners, and operators must work together as an effective team. But what does it actually take to build a high-functioning team that gets results and achieves the outcomes they want? How do we leverage each person's unique skills and experience to plan for and build safe spaces that engage residents and promote ongoing wellness for what is often a range of cognitive abilities? Our panelists have wisdom to share about how they've made this happen in the past, what's worked well – and what hasn't. Join panelists Josh Freitas, an award-winning memory care program developer, researcher, and author currently working as the VP of program development for CERTUS Senior Living and Chief Research Officer at the CERTUS Institute, James F. Sagsetter, Healthcare Programmer and Planner for the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, MN, Melinda Avila Torio, Associate Principal and Senior Interior Designer at THW Design, and our moderator, Suzanne Barnes, founder and owner of ArchitectLINK, for a breakfast event filled with insights about how these experts have brought exceptional projects to life through exceptional teamwork.
